Neil Murry

Neil Murry spends most days working as a solicitor in a grown-up City law firm. A little earlier this year his debut album 'Return to Malibu' was released - 'a collection of songs about love, teenage innocence and ambition, written, produced and almost entirely performed by Neil.' His journey from a guitar made out of two pieces of wood and an elastic band, aged 8 in Hong Kong, to recording this album, was something of a quirky, meandering adventure with unlikely pit stops at law college, new wave London and a pretty serious legal practice. It is rumoured his wife in desperation booked him two days in a recording studio and his new album is the result. He is supported tonight by Mark Millin (another City solicitor) and Kevin Duncan (who isn't).

Cast Members from BBC TV's 'Crown Prosecutor'

Tom Chadbon ('Lennie Monk'), Deborah Grant ('Sheila Cody'), Jessica Stephenson ('Jackie South'), and possibly others, accompanied by Steve Rose will add another dimension to your view of the Crown Prosecution Service. Many thanks to them and to producer, Esta Charkham for being supportive.
